

DIRECT NORFOLK ISLAND SERVICE DELAYED

Air Chathams is reluctantly announcing a delay in commencing weekly passenger flights to Norfolk Island. “We were very much hoping to be able to begin flights in 2018 and have been working hard towards achieving this. Due to a combination of circumstances, this won’t be possible and we felt it best to advise those waiting on the service that it is more likely to begin early in 2019” said Duane Emeny, General Manager.

“We have been working closely with interested parties and tourism groups in the Norfolk Island and New Zealand and are still really looking forward to opening up this opportunity. It is just going to be later than we had anticipated.”
