COUNCIL CALLS FOR END TO SIGN AND FOOTPATH VANDALISM

Norfolk Island Regional Council (Council) is calling on the community to respect public infrastructure following ongoing incidents of road sign vandalism and recent graffiti on signs and footpaths across the island.

Road signs play an important role in keeping the community safe, helping motorists and visitors navigate the island, identify hazards and support emergency services. When signs are damaged or removed, they can pose serious safety risks.

The damage also impacts Norfolk Island's reputation as a welcoming visitor destination, creating a poor impression for residents and tourists alike.

Repairing and replacing damaged infrastructure comes at a cost to the community, diverting resources away from maintaining and improving local roads and facilities.

Council urges everyone to respect public infrastructure and report damaged or missing signs. Anyone who witnesses deliberate vandalism is encouraged to contact Norfolk Island Police.

To report damaged or missing signs:

Phone: 0100
